

Are your students willing to dive into leadership positions?

Or are they hesitating?

Being thrust into a leadership position can be very scary. Students are often talked into serving as officers before they even get a chance to enjoy being a member. They haven't had a chance to learn by example. Often you will hear, "What do I do? Who's going to help me? I'm not sure I'm cut out for this. HELP!"

You need Dave Kelly, America's Student Leadership Trainersm on your campus!

Dave knows what your students are experiencing. When he was a freshman in college, he said "yes" to a local leadership position that he felt sure that he was not qualified for. Four years later, Dave was elected international president of that very same 14,000-member organization.

Thousands of college students have benefited from Dave's highly energetic, practical, and interactive training sessions. He will instill confidence in your students that they CAN take on any leadership position on campus and be successful.

Take the plunge!

Invite Dave to your campus to instill the confidence in your students that they have been searching for. You'll be glad you did!
